

Indiana's telephone privacy law works quite well for consumers and provides better shielding from unwanted solicitation-type calls than does the federal legislation. The petition filed by this banking association should be thrown out. The FCC should work to protect consumers from businesses that misuse the telephone system.